"The Coin Machines Merry-Go-Round"

By Bill Gersh

IT CAN HAPPEN HERE

The complacent feeling about the progress of the war, which is generally apparent thruout the country, has also invaded this industry regarding the methods which should be used at this time to maintain the many advantages which have so far been won during this war period. As everyone engaged in this industry realizes since the war started, and even some months prior to this infamous day, there has been extremely little adverse publicity in the nation's press regarding coin operated equipment.

But this does not mean that anyone in this industry can afford to become careless and neglectful at this time. Because of the fact that this industry finds certain politicians and blue-noses particularly busy with the war effort, and those noted publicity seeking officials just as busy telling the public how busy they are doing busy jobs for this busy nation's welfare, it should also be remembered that these same publicity seeking politicians can turn about tomorrow and once again start on crusades against this industry. And in most cases, probably catch the majority of the firms in this business entirely unawares and unprepared.

Complacency in war production caused a drop of more than 5% this past month as was reported out of Washington a few weeks ago. Complacency in this industry, replacing careful watchfulness, can cause a much greater percentage of loss, and may cause some territories so much grief that they will be without the operation of coin machines for years to come. (This has been proven time and time again in this industry.)

It is necessary for the men actively engaged in this business to be just as wary today as they were many months ago. They must be made to realize that at any moment, just at the whim and fancy of some politico who hasn't been getting enough front page limelight, that they can suffer a fatal attack. It is therefore the duty of all those engaged in this business who wish to continue the gains which have so far been made to keep these others informed of these possibilities and thereby protect themselves as well as all others in their territories and thruout the nation from any possible fatal hurt.

This industry has continued for a great many months to enjoy a literal fairyland of profits because of the absence of adverse publicity. But in the past few months, because of this very fact, an air of complacency has developed. The war is not over. Not by a long, long shot. The plans being made by the nation's leaders at this time are reported to continue war production and war plans on a basis of "years" and not "months". This should, in itself, warn the members of this industry that complacency is extremely dangerous and harmful. By the same token, to neglect careful watchfulness over those who would harm this industry, would instantly capsize the profit boat on which most of the men engaged in this business are so pleasantly fishing at this time.

In the Northeastern part of the country some operators have already been rudely awakened to the fact that they cannot afford to become complacent. ODT and OPA instantly jumped down on trucks carting phonos and other equipment about, without first covering them completely and carefully with tarpaulins, and also while servicing machines to hear bragging about using gas, oil and tires. Just one disgruntled official can blast this whole business wide open because of such actions. This industry, it is well to remember, is still somewhat besmirched with certain public disregard and disbelief in it as an industry. Until that has changed all complacency should instantly be dynamited aside for otherwise this business will surely, one of these days, be rudely awakened to find itself far out on the end of a treacherous limb with nothing but a vacuum below it to absorb its fall.

SELL OR HOLD

Sometime ago The Cash Box discussed the problem that still seems to puzzle the minds of a great many in this industry. That is, whether to hold on to merchandise now on hand in the belief that prices will go even higher, or whether to sell and cash in on the prices which now exist. Naturally, it is extremely difficult to advise anyone in this direction without starting a long argumentative discourse. Yet, as a general rule, market quotations can be used and their varied fluctuational points can act as the necessary guide.

"The Coin Machines Merry-Go-Round"

From a general standpoint it is the hope of The Cash Box that instead of holding (or call it "hoarding") merchandise, that those who have merchandise will place it on the market now to benefit others thruout the industry. This is the cooperative spirit that is necessary to maintain a healthy condition in this business.

From a cold and logical business standpoint there is no doubt that at this moment merchandise is more valuable than the coin of the realm. It may become even more valuable as this inflationary price situation continues. Then again, it may meet with reverses which will drive prices down, and in so doing those who hold out for the highest possible price may find themselves obtaining a much lower price than they had hoped for. The fluctuational high points on the present market are such that the trends and turns are more subject to the whims and fancies and rumors of the trade than to business logic.

The situation which is existant at this time is more than just momentary. It is a definite reaction to the market condition which existed prior to the first inflationary peak prices which were reached early in '42. At that time many were still more anxious to sell than to buy. Today this has somewhat reversed itself only because the buyers made instant use of all equipment and did not re-sell. As equipment is used up and thereby becomes more scarce, the market situation reverts to the point where the trade itself finds that a peculiar profit set-up exists which is greatly inflationary in all aspect.

There is but one answer to whether to hoard or to sell. And that is - to sell. Sell, because the profit margin is already extremely great. Sell, because only by selling can we keep many fellow coinmen in business. Sell, because by selling other territories continue to operate profitably which will mean greater future sales in these territories when the war is won. Sell, because this sort of cooperation is most necessary to the successful continuance of this industry. Sell, because by so doing you will help others who will help you.

We hope, that if just for the purpose of watching inflated prices become further inflated and thereby catapult unusual attention to this industry that those who have merchandise will not hoard but will continue to help make this industry economically sound by selling and buying on an even keel and continuing business in the best ideals and on the highest plane.

MORE POST-WAR

Notable this past week was the meet of the retailer's group in New York to fight restrictions on installment selling. These retailers brought forth the fact that even tho installment selling has been somewhat restricted by the Federal government that it has been the basis for the finest type of merchandising that this country has ever known. That it has tremendously helped lift the standard of living conditions generally by making more easily available to the public all types of merchandise necessary to continued well being.

Installment selling plans will also be one of the highlights of the coin machines industry in the post-war era. In view of the fact that more expensive equipment is being planned installment payments will prove most necessary to the average coin machines man. And to this end the coin machines trade must also work so that restrictions are lifted to allow for the trade to enjoy installment payments on new merchandise that banking and credit institutions will see fit to finance.

Another item this past week should also prove extremely interesting to the coin machines trade. This was that the monetary experts of the allied nations were meeting to arrange a plan for international currency adjustment. This will prove tremendously important to the large export market that faces this industry when the war is over. If an equitable international monetary adjustment can be made, export will prove so much easier as well as so much more profitable for this industry.

Each and every day, while all industry generally presents plans to get into instant action in the post-war era, the coin machines industry shares in these plans because, even tho it sits on the sidelines to big business, it is well fitted to take care of the demand that will arise thruout the world, and in this nation particularly, for the products it manufactures as an adjunct to the products of all other American industries.

THE MARKET SITUATION

For a great many years now the members of this industry have always been advised as the warmer months approached, that the "Summer seasonal slump" was on the way. This has been disproved these past few years. This summer especially seems to have no effect whatsoever upon the speed action the market is showing. It also seems certain that this summer, if anything, will prove one of the most active in coin machines history. Prices are already displaying that jumpy nervousness, which means that speed action is well under way and getting even hotter than the weather in many parts of the country.

“The Coin Machines Merry-Go-Round”

Console prices are going up. Prices in this field seem to indicate that the record which was established during the past 12 months, will seem weak in comparison to what the price situation will be when '43 breathes its last. The most popular consoles, namely: Four Bells, Three Bells, Four-Way Bells, Two-Way Bells, etc., are zooming spectacularly with prices offered sometimes even higher than what sellers are asking. This condition thruout the country on console demand is pretty even. The west coast continues to lead, but other parts of the country are demanding them just as eagerly.

Pinballs slumped momentarily this past week and many leaders attribute this to the coming July 1st license situation wherein the Federal government will ask $100. per year for pinballs where awards for the free plays are made either in cash or merchandise. But generally the later models are moving speedily and are still commanding unusually high prices. After July 1st there is no doubt that pinball will once again take a rise. The Federal tax situation will be more or less clarified within a few months and with the belief pretty general that the greater majority of the licenses will be of the $10. type, there is no doubt that pinballs will come back into their own and the field itself will see speedier action.

Slots seem to have hit the top this summer. Not only do they retain the high quotations which have been made but are going up again and the demand continues unabated. The slot field is reported most popular right now due to the big demand from resort spots. Even the older machines in this field, whether revamped or refinished or not, are commanding prices far beyond anything ever quoted. The general belief among slot men is that this summer will be one of the very best ever enjoyed. (These men claim, too, that a great many slots will be pulled from locations after Labor Day and that prices will come down somewhat as operators clear them to make way for other equipment at that time.) Our suggestion to those who require slots is to get them while the getting is good and not to even think about Labor Day.

Music and Arcade machines seem to be enjoying a twin jump upwards. The percentage of increase in both cases is almost equal to the decimal point. It seems that whenever arcade equipment goes up, music equipment rises to meet it, and both types of machines are obtaining terrific prices at this time. The music men seem to have suddenly decided that they haven't been asking enough for their equipment and have jumped prices to meet what they believe these should be at this time. Likewise, with the demand for arcade machines getting greater each day, prices asked and offered are far above what they have been in some months.

One-Balls continue to remain the scarce field of the industry. Action has been slow due to the fact that very little of this equipment is being offered at this time. Those who have one-balls in operation are not selling off. And those who have them for sale are shy about even bringing them into the open market since the demand is so great and the supply so small. They can obtain almost any price they ask. It isn't surprising these days to see prices that reach almost into four figures being offered for one-balls that formerly commanded less than one-third this amount. There is no doubt that one-balls will remain the "scarce" field unless some territory where these are in big operation cracks wide open, and even then they will probably be gobbled up so fast that they will have little effect on prices generally.

HONORABLE MENTION

This week we are happy to present our Honorable Mention Award to J. R. (Pete) Pieters of King Pin Games Co., Kalamazoo, Mich., for his marvelous work with the U.S.O. and a great many charities in his territory. Not only has Pete donated many phonos and other pieces of expensive equipment to keep the soldiers entertained but has also made it a practice to help noted charitable institutions regularly. For such effort which reflects with honor upon all this industry we are happy to present our Honorable Mention Award to "Pete".

RECORD SAVERS

Suggestion from one noted record distributor will prove of value to every music operator who will have his men take the few minutes time that is necessary, while servicing his machines to get more wear out of his records. With records so hard to obtain at this time and with the majority of the new recordings giving such little play action, it will be to the advantage of each of the music men to have the records completely wiped of all dust and dirt accumulations at each servicing. This record distributor advises that by wiping the records completely clean each time that the operator will obtain from 10 to 15 more plays per record. This means from 50¢ to 75¢ more per disk. And that's not hay with the average phono today featuring 24 records.

Also of value, music men report, is the use of lightweight tone arms which also cut down on wear and tear of records. These are extremely hard to obtain at this time. But those who can obtain them should make use of them. Some of these tone arm adjusters have been able to cut down the weight to 1 and 1½ ounces from 3 and 4½ ounces of pressure on the records.

A report from Detroit, Mich. informs us that the recent rioting has injured the operations in a big way. Equipment on location was destroyed, and other equipment on trucks was lost when the trucks were tipped over. In addition, some locations were closed completely, and others were forced to close at 9 P.M. For the period of rioting and while the city was getting back to normal, the coin machine business was practically at a standstill.

DIXIE COIN MACHINE CO.

912 POYDRAS STREET NEW ORLEANS, LA.

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that every entry should be supported by a valid receipt or invoice. This ensures transparency and allows for easy verification of the data.

2. The second section covers the process of reconciling accounts. It explains how to compare the internal records with the bank statements to identify any discrepancies. Regular reconciliation is crucial for catching errors early and preventing them from escalating.

3. The third part of the document addresses the issue of budgeting. It provides a framework for setting realistic financial goals and monitoring progress against them. This involves tracking expenses and adjusting the budget as needed to stay on track.

4. The final section discusses the role of technology in modern accounting. It highlights the benefits of using accounting software to automate repetitive tasks, reduce the risk of human error, and provide real-time insights into the company's financial health.

5. The document also includes a detailed explanation of the double-entry accounting system. It describes how every transaction is recorded in two different accounts, ensuring that the total debits always equal the total credits. This system is fundamental for maintaining the integrity of the accounting records.

6. In addition, the text provides a comprehensive overview of the various financial statements that a company must prepare. These include the balance sheet, the income statement, and the cash flow statement. Each statement serves a specific purpose in providing a different perspective on the company's financial performance.

7. The document also touches upon the importance of tax compliance. It discusses the various tax obligations that a business may have and provides guidance on how to ensure that all taxes are paid on time and in full. This is essential for avoiding penalties and maintaining a good standing with the tax authorities.

8. Finally, the document concludes with a summary of the key points discussed. It reiterates the importance of accuracy, transparency, and regular monitoring in all aspects of financial management. It also offers some final thoughts on the future of accounting and the role of professionals in this field.

PAST performance is the foundation on which operators and distributors base their faith in the future . . . their confidence that the organization which created Goofy (which is pictured above for old time's sake), Airway, Rocket, Jumbo, Bumper, Bally Reserve and other historic Bally games can be counted on to bring forth successful games and venders in the days of victory and peace to come.

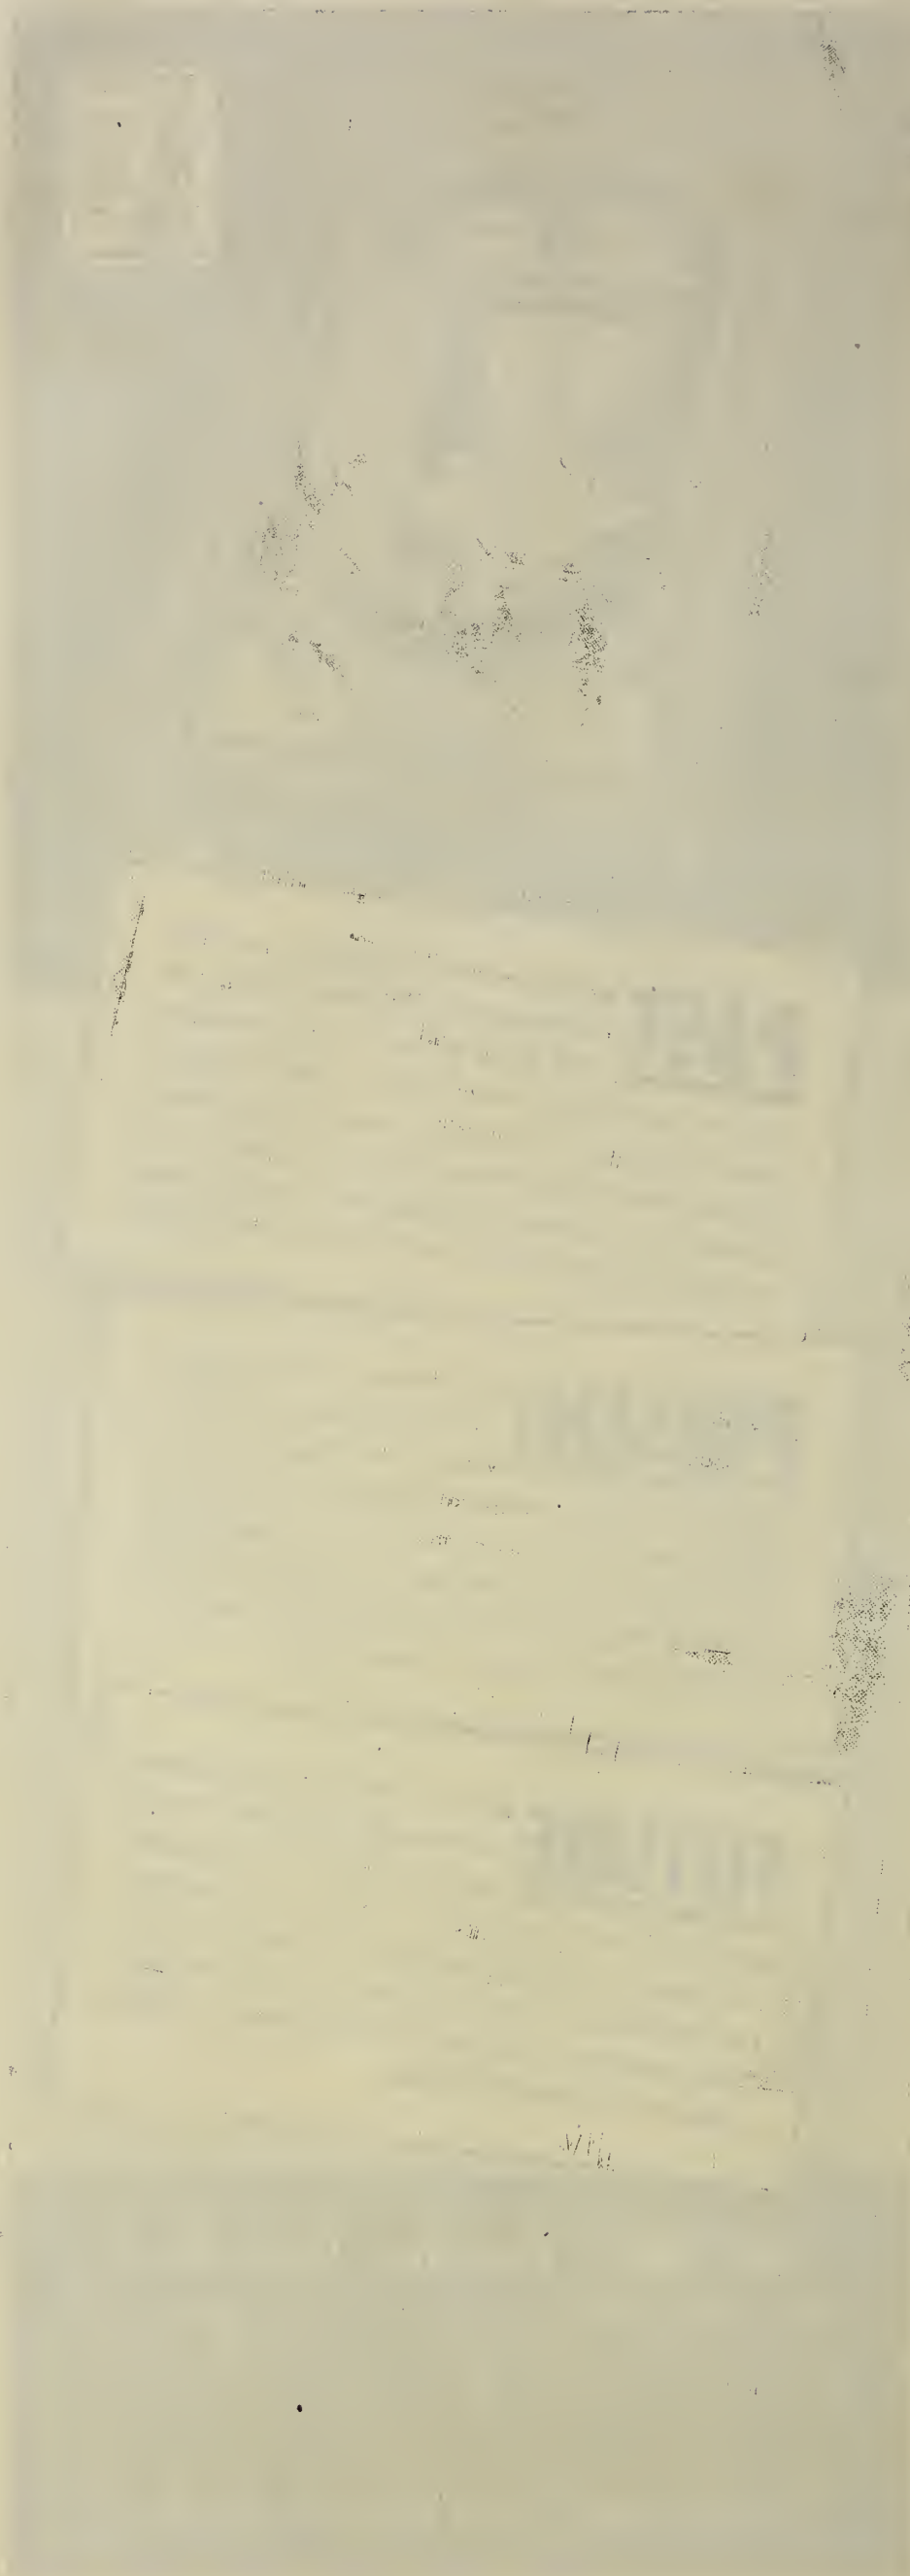

PRESENT production at the Bally factory is one hundred per cent for Uncle Sam. Night and day, seven days a week, the Bally organization is producing vital equipment for the Army and Navy . . . and proving that the technical skill developed in peace-time design and production of coin-operated games and venders is a valuable asset to America in time of war.

FUTURE plans of the Bally organization call for quick production of new games and venders immediately after the defeat of the Axis . . . and for exploitation of marvelous new electrical principles developed by war-time technology. In the post-war era, as in the past, "you can bank on Bally" for the newest in money-making games and venders of all types.

Get Bally's Post-War Flash No. 1

Operators and distributors who want early information on Bally's post-war equipment . . . games that will bring back the boom days of Ballyhoo and Bumper . . . vending machines that will open vast new opportunities . . . are urged to place their name on a special mailing list now being compiled for Bally's Post-War Flash No. 1.

JOHN M. STUART

229 MT. AIRY AVENUE

PARIS, KY.

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that every entry should be supported by a valid receipt or invoice. This ensures transparency and allows for easy verification of the data.

Furthermore, it is noted that the records should be kept for a minimum of five years. This is a standard requirement for most businesses to ensure compliance with tax regulations. The document also mentions that the records should be organized in a clear and concise manner, making it easy to locate specific information when needed.

In addition, the document highlights the need for regular audits. These audits help to identify any discrepancies or errors in the records, allowing them to be corrected promptly. This process is essential for maintaining the integrity of the financial data and ensuring that the business is operating in a lawful and ethical manner.

The second part of the document provides a detailed overview of the accounting process. It starts with the identification of all business transactions, which are then recorded in a journal. Each entry in the journal should include the date, a description of the transaction, and the amount involved. This step is crucial for ensuring that all financial activity is captured and documented.

Following the journaling process, the transactions are transferred to the appropriate T-accounts. This process, known as posting, helps to organize the data and allows for the calculation of debits and credits. The document explains that the total debits must always equal the total credits, which is a fundamental principle of accounting.

The final part of this section discusses the preparation of financial statements. These statements, including the balance sheet, income statement, and cash flow statement, provide a comprehensive view of the company's financial health. The document stresses that these statements should be prepared regularly and reviewed carefully to ensure they accurately reflect the company's performance.

The third part of the document focuses on the practical aspects of accounting, such as the use of accounting software and the role of the accountant. It notes that while software can streamline many tasks, it is essential to understand the underlying principles of accounting to use the software effectively. The accountant's role is to ensure that the data is entered correctly and that the financial statements are prepared in accordance with the relevant accounting standards.

The document also touches upon the importance of staying up-to-date with changes in accounting regulations and standards. This is a dynamic field, and professionals must continuously learn and adapt to new requirements. Regular professional development, such as attending seminars and courses, is recommended to maintain the highest level of expertise.

Finally, the document concludes by emphasizing the value of accurate accounting records. These records are not just for internal use; they are also essential for external stakeholders, including investors, lenders, and tax authorities. By providing a clear and accurate picture of the company's financial situation, good accounting practices can help to build trust and support the long-term success of the business.

IMPORTANT

The Confidential Price Lists are to be read as follows: First price listed is lowest price for the week; Second price listed is highest price for the week; Where only one price appears this should be considered lowest price.

Many times, wide differences appear in the high and low prices of certain equipment. Like any true reporter The Confidential Price Lists can only feature the market prices as they are quoted. The Confidential Price Lists act exactly the same as the market quotation board at the Stock Exchange—posting the prices exactly as they are quoted for each week, regardless of how much they may seem to be out of line. Some machine prices do not change for months. The Confidential Price Lists, rather than show no price for the week, retain the last known quotations for such equipment so that the subscriber at least has the last known quoted prices as a basis to work with. Prices continue to be very widely divergent these days. Someone on the West Coast may feel a certain machine worth $150.00 whereas someone on the East Coast may think it worth but $75.00. Of course, condition, serial, appearance, demand, territory, quantity, etc., must all be taken into consideration. The Confidential Price Lists report each quotation exactly as it is made and depend on the subscriber to make average price adjustment to fit the peculiarities of his own territory.

CODE

CHECK THIS CODE CAREFULLY. BECOME ACQUAINTED WITH EACH ONE OF THE CODE NUMBERS AND WHAT THEY SIGNIFY. THESE CODE NUMBERS APPEAR IN FRONT OF THE NAME OF EACH MACHINE.

- 1—Means price went up.
- 2—Means price went down.
- 3—Means this machine just added to list.
- 4—Means prices went up and down same week.
- 5—Means prices remained same as in past week's issue.
- 6—Means no prices quoted for this machine this week.
- 7—Means no prices quoted for this machine for past two weeks.
- 8—Means no prices quoted for this machine for past three weeks.
- 9—Means no prices quoted for this machine for past four weeks or longer.

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that this is essential for the proper management of the organization's finances and for ensuring compliance with relevant regulations.

2. The second part of the document outlines the specific procedures that must be followed when recording transactions. This includes details on how to handle receipts, invoices, and other financial documents, as well as the frequency and method of reconciling accounts.

3. The third part of the document provides a detailed overview of the organization's current financial position. It includes a summary of the budget for the current year, a comparison of actual performance against the budget, and an analysis of the factors that have influenced these results.

4. The final part of the document offers recommendations for improving financial management and controlling costs. It suggests various strategies for optimizing resource allocation, reducing waste, and enhancing the overall efficiency of the organization's operations.
